London outskirts. 3:00 AM.
The city feels abandoned.
Streetlights hum somewhere above her.
She walks because stopping feels worse

Her footsteps echo behind her.
She remembers laughing once.
It feels like remembering another person.
The night presses closer.

Keep walking

Stop for a moment

Take a side street

She walks faster now.
As if something behind her might catch up.
Ahead, the bridge waits.

She stops walking.
Silence fills her ears.
For a moment she feels invisible.
The cold reminds her she still exists.

Her footsteps echo behind her.
She remembers laughing once.
It feels like remembering another person.
The night presses closer.

Return to the road

Stand in silence

The bridge rises from the darkness.
Wind moves across the river.
Water below looks endless.

She breathes slowly. Thoughts grow louder when everything else disappears. The night feels endless.

Keep going
